For Immediate Release

Superintendent Steinhaus Named Administrator of the Year

The New Mexico National Board Certified Teacher (NMBCT) Network presented LAPS Superintendent Kurt Steinhaus with the Administrator of the Year award at their annual conference on Saturday, Sept. 28.

This award recognizes school administrators who go above and beyond to aid the endeavors of the NMBCT network, specifically for his continued support for teachers going through the National Board Certification process.

"Dr. Steinhaus has been a long time advocate for education and is an extraordinary administrator who supports his teachers in every way," said NMBCT Network President Evelyn Sanchez. "The NMBCT Network thanks him for his continued support in advancing accomplished teaching and national boards in New Mexico."

Earning this certification is a high honor and involves a rigorous process. According to the NMBCT Network, national board certified teachers positively impact student learning. There are 42 national board certified teachers within LAPS.

The goal of the NMBCT Network is to advance the work of National Boards in New Mexico, as well as provide NBCT candidate support training and professional development for teachers, NBCT candidates and NBCTs.
